

“The senior population is the highest population in need of health care and I want to be able to help provide the care they need.”

About Danielle Cunningham, RN, MSN

Danielle Cunningham’s experience in the hospital for the birth of her first child was a momentous event personally and professionally. It inspired her desire to pay it forward and become a nurse. Danielle specializes in neurology, pulmonology and critical care, and senior care is important to her. “The senior population is the highest population in need of health care,” said Danielle. “I want to be able to help provide the care they need.”
