

“I think the greatest part of being a physician is the opportunity to serve and comfort those who need it the most.”

About Valeria Espinosa, MD

Dr. Valeria Espinosa comes from a family of physicians. “I think the greatest part of being a physician is the opportunity to serve and comfort those who need it the most,” she says. She likes taking the time to listen to patients and learning about them beyond their health concerns. “Once I know their story, it is easier to find ways to help them to improve,” she explains. She cares deeply about her patients and is appreciative of the opportunity to care for the senior population. “Working with this wonderful population brings me great joy as they are full of wisdom,” she says.

In her free time, Dr. Espinosa likes singing, swimming, and traveling. She also enjoys walking in the rain and watching the clouds.
