

“I strive to align my patients' health with their life goals.”

About Sam Tweardy, MD

For Dr. Sam Tweardy, the greatest part of working in the medical field is talking with and getting to know patients. He views his relationship with patients as “a partnership” and strives help them “align their health with their life goals.” He first knew he wanted to pursue a career in healthcare after caring for someone who had hurt their leg. He finds it particularly rewarding to serve the senior population. “As the elderly population grows, it becomes a larger need, so it combines and interest of mine as well as a growing need,” he explains.

In his free time, Dr. Tweardy enjoys solving puzzles or cooking. He also loves watching movies and says he would be “a documentary filmmaker” if he was not a doctor.
