

“Caring for my patients is a partnership, and they know I am invested in their emotional, physical, and spiritual well-being.”

About Martin Baxter, MBBS

Dr. Martin Baxter loves advocating for patients and says that the “meaningful connections” he forms with patients, colleagues, and staff is his favorite part of working in healthcare. “Caring for my patients is a partnership, and they know I am invested in their emotional, physical, and spiritual well-being,” he explains. He loves caring for the senior population, noting that they are often overlooked. “I decided that I wanted to be a physician so that I could care for others holistically at a time when they needed care most,” he says.

In his free time, Dr. Baxter can be found exercising or enjoying quality time with family and friends. Prior to joining the medical field, he worked in the media industry.
