

“I love to introduce myself and inform patients this is a safe place to discuss anything.”

About Sharnee White, MSN, FNP-C

Sharnee White, who has been working in the medical field for over ten years, explains that her favorite part of working in healthcare is educating and encouraging patients. “I love to introduce myself and inform patients this is a safe place to discuss anything,” she says. She appreciates the opportunity to care for the senior population, explaining that they are “vulnerable” and need “close contact with their providers.” She adds, “They are the leaders before us and need specialty care.” If she could change anything about healthcare today, she would decrease costs and increase availability.

Sharnee White loves spending her free time with her family. She also enjoys traveling and trying foods from different cultures.
