“I always took more time in my practice to explain the whole body approach to seniors”

About Nimish N. Chokshi, DPM, D.ABFAS

Dr. Nimish N. Chokshi recognized his interest in healthcare at a young age. He particularly enjoys caring for the senior population, who are often overlooked. “I always took more time in my practice to explain the whole body approach to seniors,” he says. He values respect and compassion in his practice and explains that he “approaches treating patients as a team effort.” He adds, “At the end of the day, everyone wants to be heard and needs to know that someone is there to care for them and help guide them in a positive direction.”

In his free time, Dr. Chokshi enjoys hiking and traveling with his wife. “Spending time with my family and friends is my foundation, no matter what we are doing,” he says.
