“The senior people are more vulnerable, needs more attention and help. It is my call to help others and patients.”

About Beena Thomas, MSN, APRN, AGACNP

Working in healthcare was a childhood dream of Beena Thomas. “The senior people are more vulnerable, needs more attention and help. It is my call to help others and patients,” she explains. Beena strives to build trust with her patients by calling to check on them, whether that is “to convey the results” or confirming that “they are taking medications, checking blood pressure, blood sugar, or following the instructions.” She loves helping her patients improve their health and have “more good days.” She is committed to maintaining a practice full of “integrity and honesty.” She also maintains a strong faith in God.

When she is not caring for patients, Beena can be found drawing, cooking, or reading.
