

“By doing this, it improves their quality of life by keeping them out of the hospital.”

About Jerreka Peterson, MSN, AGACNP

Jerreka Peterson has “always had a desire to help others,” which led her to pursue a career in healthcare. She adds that she particularly loves caring for “those in the geriatric population because they are underserved.” Jerreka strives to make a positive difference in the lives of her patients “by ensuring their chronic conditions remain stable.” She explains, “By doing this, it improves their quality of life by keeping them out of the hospital.” To build strong relationships with patients, she works to earn their trust by actively and thoughtfully listening to their concerns and questions.

When Jerreka is not caring for patients, she enjoys shopping, traveling, and spending quality time with family.
