“I chose to work with the senior population because they often have complex needs that require thoughtful, comprehensive management, and I value the trust and wisdom they bring to the doctor-patient relationships.”

About Aya Salahaldeen, M.D.

“A deep desired to build meaningful, long-term relationships while helping others through evidence-based care” led Dr. Aya Salahaldeen to pursue a career in medicine. “I chose to work with the senior population because they often have complex needs that require thoughtful, comprehensive management, and I value the trust and wisdom they bring to the doctor-patient relationships,” she adds. She strives to “provide personalized, compassionate care” and likes involving patients in decision-making. “I’m here to support them not just medically, but as a partner in their overall well-being,” she explains.

In her down time, Dr. Salahaldeen can be found enjoying quality time with her family, exploring new places, or trying new cuisines.
