About Lucretia D. Davis, DNP, APRN, FNP-C

“A desire to make a meaningful difference in people’s lives through care and healing” led Lucretia D. Davis to pursue a career in medicine. She loves “building long-term relationships” with patients and especially values the opportunity to help senior patients “maintain dignity, independence, and quality of life.” She aims to provide “compassionate, personalized care that addresses both physical and emotional needs,” specifically through active listening and honoring patients’ goals. She views herself as a “partner” in her patients’ health journeys.

When she is not caring for patients or spending quality time with her family, Lucretia Davis can be found reading, enjoying the outdoors, or volunteering in her local community.
