“When my patients feel valued and understood, they are more likely to engage in their treatment, leading to better health outcomes and a higher quality of life.”

About Jennifer Ulliman, APRN, FNP-C

Jennifer Ulliman was inspired by her mother, “a dedicated nurse,” to pursue a career in healthcare. She especially loves caring for the senior population, explaining, “I cherish the stories and wisdom that older adults share, and I find great fulfillment in connecting with their families and being a part of their lives.” She strives to provide a “safe and welcoming space” and likes getting to know patients beyond their medical concerns. “When my patients feel valued and understood, they are more likely to engage in their treatment, leading to better health outcomes and a higher quality of life,” she says.

In her down time, Jennifer can be found running, doing yoga, watching football, or spending quality time with family.
